

AVIS DE L'ÉDITEUR.

Les Dictionnaires de Poche publiés jusqu'à présent peuvent être de quelque secours aux personnes qui ont déjà une connaissance de la langue et qui trouvent alors un aide-mémoire plus ou moins suffisant dans ces petits vocabulaires abrégés et dépourvus d'explications, traduisant presque tous un mot par un seul mot, qu'il ait ou non plusieurs acceptions bien reconnues.

J'ai voulu, en choisissant un caractère compacte mais lisible, étendre le cadre de la composition, et donner ainsi aux étudiants, même aux élèves qui en sont encore aux premiers éléments de la langue, tous les secours que l'on chercherait vainement dans les Dictionnaires d'un si petit format, et que la plupart des grands Dictionnaires ne fournissent qu'imparfaitement et avec moins de méthode que celui-ci.

La nomenclature des mots de la langue oratoire, industrielle, scientifique et commerciale est complète, justifiée par l'autorité du Dictionnaire de l'Académie Française pour la partie française, et par l'autorité des Dictionnaires Walker, Johnson et Webster, pour la partie anglaise.

LA PRONONCIATION FIGURÉE pour le dictionnaire a été introduite pour la première fois dans un format. Un Glossaire complet des Termes Éco- à l'ordre alphabétique; il est indispensable grand nombre d'ouvrages, et particulièrement Walter Scott.

On a indiqué les formes irrégulières des verbes.

On a eu soin d'ajouter les Vocabulaires des noms propres qui ne s'écrivent pas de même dans l'une et l'autre langue.

Enfin on a fait précéder chaque partie d'un Précis de Grammaire pour les Français et pour les Anglais; de telle sorte qu'avec ce nouveau Dictionnaire un élève puisse faire des Versions et des Hommes, sans recourir à une autre Grammaire ni à un autre Dictionnaire.

NOTICE

SUR LA GRAMMAIRE ET LA PRONONCIATION ANGLAISES.

GRAMMAIRE.

La langue anglaise se compose de dix espèces de mots : l'article, le substantif, l'adjectif, le pronom, le verbe, le participe, l'adverbe, la préposition, la conjonction et l'interjection.

ARTICLE. Il y a deux articles : l'article défini the, qui répond à le, la, les, et l'article indéfini a ou an, qui répond à un, une. A s'emploie devant les consonnes, devant one, devant un y, un u long (pron. you), devant un h muet ou un e suivi d'un u long ; an s'emploie devant une voyelle, un h muet, ou un h aspiré qui commence un mot accentué sur la seconde syllabe. Ex. The man, l'homme ; the books, les livres ; a son, un fils ; such a one, un tel ; a year, un an ; a utensil, un ustensile ; a eulogy, un éloge ; a husband, un mari ; an order, un ordre ; an heir, un héritier ; an heroic action, une action héroïque SUBSTANTIF. Il y a deux substantifs : l'un qui convient à tous les individus d'une même espèce, ou substantif commun, ex. man, qui ne s'applique qu'à un individu, ou substantif propre. Country, pays ; tree, arbre ; Thomas, Thomas ; London, Le

Le pluriel se forme en ajoutant s au singulier, ou es, si le mot se termine en s, z, x, sh et ch. Ex. Prince, princes ; glass, glasses ; box, boxes ; wish, wishes. Les terminaisons f, *g*ent en ves pour le pluriel (calf, calves ; life, lives). Le pluriel des substantifs en f, ov, ief, rf, se forme en es. Les terminaisons en y, précédé d'une consonne, ies, et celles en y, précédé d'une voyelle, suivent le pluriel (lady, ladies ; day, days). Les terminaisons en us, us, le pluriel, les uns par l'addition de es (car, cars) ; les autres par l'addition d'un s (folio, folios). Les substantifs n'ont pas de pluriel (wealth, richesse ; *busi*ness, progrès) ; d'autres n'ont point de singulier (oats, avoine ; cresses, cresson) ; d'autres servent au pluriel (deer, bête fauve ; sheep, mouton)

Il existe enfin une trentaine de noms irréguliers dont les rapports qui sont indiqués dans le dictionnaire

Le rapport qui s'exprime en français par entre deux substantifs, se rend en anglais par of (statuary, un chef-d'œuvre de sculpture ; the ruin of states, les parties du discours). Mais lorsque ce rapport implique propriété, on ajoute au substantif qui en exprime l'objet, une apostrophe et on le place devant l'autre (the palais du roi; the soldiers' tents, les tentes des soldats). On transpose simplement les mots sans ajouter d'apostrophe, lorsque l'objet du rapport représente la matière dont se compose le sujet, son usage, son espèce, ou une chose dont il fait partie (A gold-watch, une montre d'or; a milk-pot, un pot au lait; sea-fish, poisson de mer; the chamber window, la fenêtre de la chambre).

ADJECTIF. L'adjectif anglais précède toujours le substantif, et sa terminaison ne varie jamais. Ex. A blue coat, un habit bleu; a blue gown, une robe bleue; blue coats, des habits bleus; blue gowns, des robes bleues.

Quand l'adjectif est d'une syllabe, on forme le comparatif de supériorité en ajoutant au positif er, ou r, s'il est terminé par un e muet, et le superlatif de supériorité en ajoutant au positif est, ou st, s'il se termine par un e muet. Ex. Kind, kinder, kindest; white, whiter, whitest.

Le comparatif et le superlatif des adjectifs polysyllabes se forment en plaçant more devant l'un et most devant l'autre. Ex. Opulent, more opulent, the most opulent.

Le comparatif et le superlatif d'infériorité se forment en plaçant less, moins, devant l'un, et the least, le moins, devant l'autre. Le que qui suit le comparatif de supériorité ou d'infériorité se rend par than.

Le comparatif d'égalité se rend par as, dans les propositions affirmatives, par so dans les propositions négatives, et par as dans celles qui sont négatives et interrogatives. Le que qui suit le comparatif d'égalité se rend par as.

Enfin, plusieurs adjectifs forment leurs comparatifs et leurs superlatifs irrégulièrement, comme : Good, better, best; bad, worse, worst; ces irrégularités sont indiquées dans le dictionnaire.

À part des adjectifs se forment par l'addition d'une terminaison aux substantifs correspondants. La terminaison ful indique abondance (bounty, bonté; bountiful, bon); less exprime privation ou reproche; blameless, irréprochable); en convertit en adjectif les noms de matière (gold, or; golden, d'or); ish, ajouté à un nom, en atténue le sens (sweet, doux, sweetish, douceâtre); like, nom, implique ressemblance (child, enfant; child-like implique aussi ressemblance (giant, géant; child-like)).

Pronoms personnels : I, je, moi; thou, tu; he, il; she, elle; we, nous; you, vous; they, ils, elles; et lorsqu'il est régi par un verbe ou une préposition, me, moi; thee, te, toi; him, le, lui; her, la, elle; us, nous; you, vous; them, les, eux, elles.

Pronoms relatifs : who, whom, équivalant à l'adjectif quel, lequel.

Pronoms réfléchis : Myself, moi-même, me; thyself, toi-même, te; herself, elle-même, se; itself, lui-même, se; oneself, soi-même, se; ourselves, nous-mêmes, vous-mêmes, vous; themselves, eux-mêmes, se.

Pronoms possessifs conjonctifs : My, mon, ma, mes; thy, ton, ta, tes; his, son, sa, ses; our, notre, nos; your, votre, leurs.

Pronoms possessifs relatifs : Mine, le mien, la mienne, les miens, les miennes.

miens, les miennes; thine, le tien, la tienne, les tiens, les tiennes; his, hers, its, one's, le sien, la sienne, les siens, les siennes; ours, le nôtre, la nôtre, les nôtres; yours, le vôtre, la vôtre, les vôtres; theirs, le leur, la leur, les leurs.

Il faut remarquer que les pronoms his, her, hers, its, s'accordent avec la personne qui possède, et non avec la chose possédée (The father loves his daughter and the mother her son, le père aime sa fille et la mère son fils; the town and its adjacent country, la ville et ses environs).

4. Le pronom relatif: Who, which, that, qui, lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles, que; whose, dont, de qui, à qui (impliquant propriété); what, ce qui; whom, qui, lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles, que; whose, dont, de qui, à qui; what, ce qui; whom, qui, lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles, que

5. Le pronom interrogatif: Who, qui, qui est-ce qui; whose, à qui (impliquant propriété); whom, qui, which, lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles; what, quoi.

6. Le pronom démonstratif: This, ce, cet, cette, celui-ci, celle-ci, these, ces, ceux, celles, ceux-ci, celles-ci; that, ce, cet, cette, celui-là, celle-là; those, ces, ceux, celles, ceux-là, celles-là.

7. Le pronom indéfini: Some, quelque; one, on, etc.

VERBE. Le verbe actif exprime l'action que fait le sujet; et il a un régime direct: She loves her father, elle aime son père; le verbe passif exprime l'action soufferte par le sujet (she is loved by her father, elle est aimée de son père), et le verbe neutre exprime l'existence, l'état ou les attributs du sujet (he is, il est; he sleeps, il dort; she stammers, elle bégaye).

Le verbe régulier est celui dont le préterit et le participe passé se forment en ajoutant au radical ed, ou d, s'il se termine par une voyelle. Quant aux verbes irréguliers, leurs préterits et leurs participes passés sont indiqués dans le dictionnaire.

Les verbes qui se terminent en sh, ss, x, z, o, prennent est à la seconde personne, et es à la troisième personne du singulier de l'indicatif; ceux qui se terminent en e, prennent seulement st et s; quant à ceux qui se terminent en y, ils le changent en iest et ies, s'il est précédé d'une consonne, et l'on y ajoute st et s, s'il est précédé d'une voyelle (push, pushest, pushes; go, goest, goes; love, lovest, loves; cry, criest, cries; say, sayst, says). De même lorsqu'un verbe se termine par une consonne, on la double pour former les participes, excepté lorsque la finale est un x ou que la dernière syllabe n'est pas accentuée (blot, blotting, blotted; permit, permitting, permitted; mix, mixing, mixed; solicit, soliciting, solicited).

Pour former le verbe réfléchi, on ajoute à la suite du verbe actif le pronom myself, thyself, &c., suivant la personne (I dress myself, je m'habille; you dress yourselves, vous vous habillez). Quant au verbe impersonnel, il ne s'emploie comme en français qu'à la troisième personne des temps de l'indicatif et du subjonctif, précédé du pronom it. (It rains, il pleut; it should rain, qu'il plût).

Le présent de l'indicatif s'exprime de trois manières distinctes. La première indique seulement l'action: I grant, j'accorde. La seconde donne de l'énergie à l'affirmation, comme pour détruire un doute ou faire un reproche: We do love our country, oui, nous aimons notre pays. La troisième indique que l'action se passe au moment où l'on parle: She is running in the garden, elle court dans le jardin. Ces trois nuances se rencontrent de même dans le passé.

Do et did servent à donner de la force à l'expression; mais ils s'emploient surtout dans les phrases négatives et interrogatives, ou pour éviter la répétition du verbe principal, en répondant à une question: Ex I do know, je sais pertinemment; she does not know it, elle ne le sait pas; he did not write well, il n'écrivait pas bien; do they walk fastly, marchent-ils vite? No, they do not, non (ils ne marchent pas vite); Did they not see us, ne nous virent-ils pas? Ex. Yes, they did, oui, (ils nous virent).

Shall, should, will, would, may, might, have, be, employés ordinairement comme auxiliaires, servent, de la même manière que do et did, à éviter la répétition d'un verbe. Would sert quelquefois à marquer l'habitude (the dog would bark at him, le chien aboyait après lui).

Non seulement le régime indirect des verbes anglais est exprimé par une douzaine de prépositions différentes (at, of, with, at, &c.), mais le sens même des verbes est modifié à l'infini par les prépositions qu'on y ajoute comme partie intégrante. La plupart de ces idiotismes sont expliqués dans le dictionnaire; il suffit de remarquer ici, que lorsqu'une préposition précède un verbe, elle le régit au participe présent, sauf to, qui le régit à l'infinitif.

PRONONCIATION.

La prononciation anglaise étant figurée à côté de chacun des mots de la nomenclature, il suffit d'en rappeler les principaux caractères.

A a cinq sons: é (fate, paver); a, (car, father); â, (fall, water); œ, (fat, mat); o, (wash, wallow).

E a quatre sons: i (me, here); e (met, let, bed); a (clerk); eu: f (commander, prettier).

Ue a le son you (clue), et ne se prononce quelquefois pas (antique, fatigue, dialogue).

Ui a trois sons : oui (anguish), lou (suit, juice), ou (bruise fruit); il ne se prononce pas dans guide, build, &c.

Uy se prononce oui (obloquy), ou ne se prononce pas (plaguy).

B final précédé d'un m, ou suivi d'un t dans la même syllabe, se prononce pas (lamb, debt).

Ch se prononce tch (child), ch (machine), et k (chimera, ache).

G est dur dans certains mots : (tiger, finger, shaggy, &c.); plus souvent il se prononce dj (elegy).

Gh a le son g dur au commencement des mots; à la fin de certains, il ne se prononce pas (plough, night); dans d'autres, il se prononce f (laugh), ou k (shough).

J se prononce dj.

Ng, terminant une syllabe ou un mot, donne à la voyelle qui précède un son très bref : (sang, ding, dung), et se prononce comme si le g était suivi de ne en français.

S a un son doux (ilisdain), et un son siffant (sin); il se prononce j dans certaines terminaisons en sion, sure (decision, treasure), et ch dans d'autres (expulsion, censure).

Sh se prononce ch (shall, sharp).

Sch se prononce sk (scheme), et s dans schedule, &c.

T, dans les terminaisons en tion, a le son ch (intention), et t (question); il est muet dans les finales sten, stle (listen, castle), et dans often, soften, &c.

Th a un son dur (death, this), et un son doux (father).

W se prononce ou, et ne se prononce pas devant r (wreck), et devant ho (whole).

ELEMENTS

OF FRENCH GRAMMAR.

There are in French nine parts of speech, namely : substantive or noun, article, adjective, pronoun, verb, adverb, preposition, conjunction, and interjection.

SUBSTANTIVE. There are two sorts of substantives : the proper substantive, which is applied to a particular person or thing (César, Cæsar; les Alpes, Alps), and the common substantive, which belongs to a whole class of objects (homme, man; forêt, forest).

To substantives belong gender and number. There are two genders, the masculine (un homme, a man; un livre, a book; le courage, courage), and the feminine (une femme, a woman; une forêt, a forest; la victoire, victory); practice is the only guide which can be followed to ascertain the gender of inanimate objects. Substantives are of two numbers, the singular (arbre, tree; tour, tower), and the plural (arbres, trees; tours, towers); some nouns are used only in the singular (le courage, courage; l'or, gold), and others only in the plural (les mouchettes, snuffers; des épinards, spinage).

The plural is formed by adding s to the singular (homme, man, hommes, men; livre, book, livres, books). But nouns ending in s, x, z in the singular, remain the same in the plural (fils, son, fils, sons; voix, voice, voix, voices; nez, nose, nez, noses); nouns ending in au, eu, ou, are rendered plural by adding an x (bateau, boat, bateaux, boats; vœu, vow, vœux, vows; bijou, jewel, bijoux, jewels); nouns ending in al, ail, change it into aux in the plural (cheval, horse, chevaux, horses; travail, work, travaux, works), except bal, détail, and some others which follow the general rule. As for those which have quite irregular plurals, see the French and English Dictionary.

ARTICLE. There are three sorts of articles, the definite, the indefinite and the partitive.

The definite article is le before a masculine noun, la before a feminine noun, and les for both genders in the plural (le livre, the book; la pomme, the apple; les livres, les pommes, the books, the apples). The indefinite article is un before a masculine noun, and une before a feminine noun (un manteau, a cloak; une table, a table). Hence may be deduced that both articles always agree in gender and number with the nouns to which they relate.

When the article le, la, is to be used before a noun or adjective beginning with a vowel or an h not aspirate, an apostrophe is put in the place of e or a, so that the article and the noun or adjective form but one word (l'or for le or, gold; l'histoire for la histoire, history; l'ancien for le ancien). When there is occasion to use the article le immediately after the preposition de, both are contracted into du; the same contraction occurs in des instead of de les, au instead of à le, aux instead of à les; but it does not take place when le is followed by a noun or adjective beginning with a vowel or an h not aspirate (de l'or, of gold; de l'homme, of man; de l'ancien monde, of the ancient world).

The partitive article is du, de la, de l' (before a vowel or an h not aspirate), des, according to the gender and number of the noun (du pain, bread; de la haine, hatred; de l'or, gold; des poires, pears); but after a negation, or before an adjective followed by a noun, de alone is used without any distinction of gender or number (il ne mange pas de pain, he eats no bread; nous avons de bon vin et de belles figes, we have good wine and fine figs).

ADJECTIVE. The adjective agrees in gender and number with the noun to which it relates, and this difference of gender and number is generally marked by the termination of the adjective (un beau cheval, a fine horse; une poire mûre, a ripe pear; les beaux arts, the fine arts).

Adjectives ending in e are of both genders (homme aimable, amiable man; femme aimable, amiable woman). Adjectives ending in d, é, eur, i, t, u, form their feminine by the addition of an e, (grand, grande; sensé, sensée; intérieur, intérieure; poli, polie; gratuit, gratuite; tortu, tortue); the same addition is made to those ending in ais, as, eil, el, es, et, ien, il, on, os, ot, ul, but the final is doubled (épais, épaisse; pareil, pareille; net, nette; bon, bonne; sot, sotté). Adjectives ending in f, change it into ve (naïf, naïve), and those ending in x change it into se (jalous, jalouse). About thirty adjectives ending in au, c, in, ou, x have quite irregular plurals which are indicated in the French and English Dictionary, and eight others ending in et, not only form their feminine by the addition of an e, but require the grave accent on the penultimate e (inquiet, inquiète).

Adjectives ending in c, d, e, é, f, g, i, n, t, u, form their plural by the addition of an s (poil, poils; grand, grands; intelligent, intelligents). Adjectives ending in s or x, do not change their termination in the plural (gros, hideux); those ending in au, take x in the plural (beau, beaux); those in al change their termination into aux (égal, égaux); but most of them have no plural masculine (amical, frugal, naval, &c.).

Of the three degrees of comparison, the positive is the adjective in its simple state. The comparative of superiority is formed by putting plus more, before the adjective (plus joli, finer; plus illustre, more illustrious); the comparative of inferiority, by prefixing moins, less, to the adjective (moins belle, less beautiful), and the comparative of equality, by putting aussi before the adjective in affirmative, and si in negative phrases; the terms of comparison, when expressed, are connected with the comparative by the conjunction que (aussi instruit, as learned; il n'est pas si âgé qu'elle, he is not so old as she). The comparatives of bon, mauvais, petit, are meilleur, pire, moindre.

The superlative absolute is formed by putting très, fort, bien, very, before the adjective, and the superlative relative, by prefixing the article le, la, les, according to the gender and number required, to the comparative (une très-belle ville, a very fine city; la plus belle des villes, the finest of cities). When a possessive pronoun is to be used before the comparative, the article is left out (mon meilleur ami, the best friend of mine).

When the adjective relates to two nouns singular, of the same gender, it must be put in the plural and agree with them in gender (ma mère et ma sœur sont contentes, my mother and sister are satisfied); but when the two nouns to which the adjective relates, are of different genders, the adjective must be put in the masculine plural (mon père et ma mère sont contents, my father and mother are satisfied).

5. Indefinite pronouns on, quelqu'un, quelque, chaque, l'un et l'autre, quiconque, &c. V. The French Dictionary.

VERB. A verb active expresses an action and implies an agent and an object acted upon (elle aime son père, she loves her father). A verb passive expresses a passion and the receiving of an action (elle est aimée de son père, she is loved by her father). A verb neuter expresses being or a state of being (je suis, I am; je dors, I sleep; je vais à Londres, I go to London). A verb pronominal, or conjugated with two pronouns, is reflective, when the action it implies, falls upon the subject (je me flatte, I flatter myself); neuter, when it marks only a state of the subject (elle se repent, she repents; il s'enfuit, he ran away); and reciprocal, when there is a reciprocity of action between two or more subjects (ils s'entr'aident, they help one another); it is also used impersonally (il se bâtit, there is building; il s'est dit, it has been said). Impersonal verbs are only used in the third person singular (il neige, it snows), and neuter verbs frequently assume the same form (il vint un homme, there came a man).

FIFTH BRANCH.

Poindre, to peep, is only used in the infinitive, and the third persons, il point, il poindra.

The passive voice is expressed by means of the past participle and the auxiliary verb être (je suis aimé, I am loved; je serais aimé, I should be loved).

Some neuter verbs are conjugated with the auxiliary être, and others with the auxiliary avoir (j'ai parlé, I have spoken; je suis parti, I am gone; ils sont tombés, they have fallen).

Pronominal verbs are conjugated as follows:

Indictive. es. Se repentir, to repent.—Pres. part. Se repen- tant. Past part. Repenti, e. Ind. Pres. Je me repens, tu te repens, il se repent, nous nous repen- tons, vous vous repentez, ils se repen- tent. Imp. Je me repentai. Pret. def. Je me repentis.
Fut. Je me repentirai. Condit. Je me repentirais. Compound tenses. Je me suis repenti, je m'étais repenti, je me fus repenti, je me serai repenti, je me serais repenti. Imperat. Repens-toi, qu'il se repente, repentons-nous, repentez-vous, qu'ils se re- repentent. Subj. Pres. Que je me repente. Imp. Que je me repentisse. Compound tenses. Que je me sois repenti, que je me fusse repenti.

Negative inflections are expressed by ne pas, ne point, or by ne, when the verbs are followed or preceded by per une, anybody, jamais, ever, rien, anything. In simple tenses, ne is placed before the verb, and pas, point, after it; in compound tenses, ne is placed before the auxiliary verb, and pas, point, after it (je ne vois pas, I do not see; je n'ai jamais vu, I never saw; il ne fait rien, he does nothing; personne ne l'aurait vu, nobody would have seen him). In pronominal verbs, ne is placed between the two pronouns, and pas, point, after the verb, in simple tenses, and after the auxiliary verb, in compound tenses (je ne me repens pas, I do not repent; il ne s'est point repenti, he did not repent; elle ne s'était rien refusé, she had denied herself nothing).

Interrogative inflections are expressed by placing the pronoun after the verb, in simple tenses, and after the auxiliary verb, in compound tenses (dort-il, is he sleeping? viendrez-vous, will you come? l'ont-elles entendu, did they hear him?); but the first person singular of the present of the indicative of the first, second and fourth conjugations, is formed by prefixing est-ce que to the verb in its affirmative inflection, and the same mode of interrogation is used whenever there is occasion to express surprise, admiration or doubt (est-ce que je dors, do I sleep? est-ce que je le prends, do I take it?) When the third person singular of the verb ends with a vowel, or is followed by a word beginning with a vowel, -t- is placed after the verb, in simple tenses, and after the auxiliary verb, in compound tenses (a-t-elle, has she? le verra-t-il, will he see it? l'aura-t-elle entendu, will she have heard him? les verrat-on, will they be seen?)

Negative and interrogative inflections are expressed according to the same rules (n'entendez-vous pas, do you not hear; ne seraient-elles pas satisfaites, would they not be satisfied; ne verra-t-on jamais, will it never be seen).

PRONUNCIATION.

We subjoin here a few of the sounds represented in the French Dictionary, which may require an explanation, all others being pure English; but it must be observed the g sounds will be found generally represented according to the usual mode of pronouncing them, rather than to regular syllabication.

Aing, ang, ong, ung, yaing, yang, yo represent the nasal sounds of the vowels a, e, i, o, u, when followed by n; the final g is only put in as a sign and must not be pronounced.

Ah sounds like a in fat.

Air sounds like er in were, there.

Au sounds like a in wall.

Ay, ey, sound like the first e in were, there.

Gh represents the hard sound of g in tiger.

Hj represents the h sound of s in pleasure.

Oh sounds like o.

Oo, when represented by ou, the sound of u, which may be known by its presence in the French word, must be pronounced with the under lip a little protruded and a light aspiration; when representing the french ou, it sounds like o in move.

Uh, when in italics, sounds like short u in tub, and is almost silent in terminations; when in roman letters, it has a very long sound.

Yuh, with uh in italics, represents the liquid sound of ll, or of final l preceded by ai, ei, œi, eui, oui.

When, in a french word, gn is preceded and followed by a, e, o, or u, it nearly sounds like ni in onion; when it is preceded and followed by i, it has the english sound of ing.

Great attention must be paid to the accents; for they not only change the sound of the vowels, but also the meaning of words (pêche, peach; péché, sin; là, the; là, there). Three accents are used on the vowels; the acute ('), placed on e alone (bonté, ténébreux); the grave (`), used on a, e, u (là, there; progrès, progress; où, where); the circumflex (^), used on every one of the vowels (plâtre, plaster; rêve, dream; hôte, guest).

The cedille (ç) placed under c, gives it the sound of before a, o, u, (facade, façon, reçu).

The diæresis (¨) placed over the vowels e, i, u, denotes that they form one distinct syllable (haïr, Esaü).

The hyphen (-) is used in connecting compound words (impuissant).
